

- Name: Jee Eun Rhee

- Current Position: Deputy Director, Korea Disease Control and Prevention Agency

- Country: Republic of Korea

- Educational Background:
 - MS, Chonnam National University, Korea (2001)
 - PhD, Chonnam National University, Korea (2004)

- Professional Experience:
 - Postdoctoral fellowship, Seoul National University (2004-2005)
 - Postdoctoral fellowship, University of Illinois at Chicago (2005-2007)

- Professional Organizations:
 - Staff Scientist, Division of AIDS, Korea Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (2007-2015)
 - Staff Scientist, Division of Research Planning, Korea Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (2016-2017)
 - Staff Scientist, Division of Laboratory Diagnosis Management, Korea Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (2018-2020)
 - Deputy Director, Division of Emerging Infectious Diseases, Korea Disease Control and Prevention Agency(2020-Present)

- Main Scientific Publications:
 - Impact of coronavirus disease 2019 on respiratory surveillance and explanation of high detection rate of human rhinovirus during the pandemic in the Republic of Korea. Influenza Other Respir Viruses. 2021
 - Risk factors for cytological progression in HPV 16 infected women with ASC-US or LSIL: The Korean HPV cohort. Obstet Gynecol Sci. 2018
 - DNA methylation in Human Papillomavirus-infected cervical cells is elevated in high-grade squamous intraepithelial lesions and cancer. J Gynecol Oncol. 2016
 - Methylation of cervical neoplastic cells infected with Human Papillomavirus 16. Int J Gynecol Cancer. 2016